The situation of Mount Lofty was found from hence and from some other cross bearings, to be 34°59' south and 138°42' east. No land was visible so far to the north as where the trees appeared above the horizon, which showed the coast to be very low, and our soundings were fast decreasing.

From noon to six o'clock we ran thirty miles to the northward, skirting a sandy shore at the distance of five, and thence to eight miles; the depth was then 5 fathoms, and we dropped the anchor upon a bottom of sand, mixed with pieces of dead coral.

Flinders University continues to emphasise the importance of maintaining its position as a high quality teaching and research university. In a rapidly changing and increasingly challenging national and international environment, Flinders’ demonstrated capacity to be innovative and responsive to external opportunities and expectations is critical for the University’s future. Overall, the University had another successful year in 2005 and looks forward to sharing some of its achievements with alumni and members of the South Australian community during its 40th anniversary year in 2006.

Flinders University is ranked ninth of the 37 Australian universities in both the 2004 and 2005 Melbourne Institute of Applied Economic and Social Research rankings. Flinders is also in the 100 best research institutions in the Asia-Pacific region and in the top 500 in the world, according to the 2004 and 2005 rankings conducted by the Shanghai Jiao Tong University.

The University’s courses are highly respected and each year the Australian and international demand for places in our undergraduate and postgraduate programs increases. Many of our generalist courses are valued, as well as our professional courses such as law, medicine, nursing and allied health, teacher education, and commerce, and the University is committed to maintaining such courses as the Bachelor of Science and the Bachelor of Arts (the largest single course in the University).

We have also added over recent years a number of courses with a more specific focus based on areas of knowledge and technology that are designed to meet particular needs and interests in such fields as archaeology, international studies, eco- and cultural tourism, creative arts, nanotechnology, biotechnology, forensic science, environmental health and management, marine biology, and behavioural science. The law and medicine degrees are among the relatively few from Australian universities that are officially recognised for practice in Singapore.

The quality of teaching at Flinders has been recognised by the University being successful in the Australian Awards for University Teaching. Flinders has been nominated for or won an award every year since 2001, with academic staff winning one of the six individual awards each year between 2001 and 2004. In 2005, Flinders University had three finalists for the awards. In 2004 a professor in the School of Law, Professor Mark Israel, won the Prime Minister’s Award for University Teacher of the Year; the first time this award has gone to a South Australian university.

Flinders continues to expand its international activities. The University is now offering three major postgraduate programs in China with local partner universities: the Master of Arts (International Relations in Economy and Trade) and the Master of Hospital Administration with Nankai University and the Master of Education with Capital Normal University. In 2005 there was a further substantial increase in the number of international students enrolled in Flinders courses, bringing the total to around 3,000 from more than 80 countries. An important group of our international students is recruited through AusAID, the Australian Government’s overseas aid program. AusAID’s high assessment of the programs and student support provided by Flinders has been sustained over a number of years.

In the research field, Flinders University was again successful in the competition for research grants from the major government funding agencies and from industry and other sources, securing more than $23 million from external sources.

Flinders University has decided to concentrate its research investment into certain broad interdisciplinary areas, called Areas of Strategic Investment (ASRIs). Through a rigorous selection process, 15 areas have so far been identified. These are Aboriginal health, neuroscience, international security, nanostructures, applied cognitive psychology, coastal and catchment environments, eye and vision, cancer control, biodiversity and landscapes, medical devices and technologies, cultural heritage and cultural change, social monitoring, clinical change, educational futures and health and society.

Flinders is actively engaged with its various communities at the local, State and national levels as well as internationally. Flinders has established centres in a number of regional areas where we concentrate on teaching and research in relevant fields. These include the University Department of Rural Health in Mount Gambier and Woomitna, a campus in the Riverland for medical and nursing students, and centres in Alice Springs and Darwin for medical and health-related courses and research. The University is a major partner in the Marine Innovation South Australia (MISA) initiative of the State Government. This initiative, in which the other major partner is the South Australian Research and Development Institute (SARDI), has received funding of $13.7 million from the government and will involve expansion of the University’s Lincoln Marine Science Centre.

In our own local area, Flinders has been actively involved with the local councils, businesses, the South Australian State Government, schools and TAFE, in a number of regional initiatives aimed at improving educational participation, workforce training, economic and social development, industrial and technological innovation, and health and welfare services. In 2005 the State Government set up the South Australian Centre for Innovation, in which Flinders is a lead partner, which provides expanded opportunities for knowledge and skill transfer between the University and the business sector and has an office in the southern suburbs.

We are proud of the achievements of Flinders University and particularly proud of our graduates. We are very appreciative of the support of the donors and organisations who have assisted the University through Alumni Association initiatives.
From the President

In September, while returning from a personal visit to Japan, I took the opportunity to stop over in Kuala Lumpur and catch up with some members of the Flinders Alumni Chapter in Malaysia. I was impressed by the level of energy and commitment that this Chapter demonstrates to maintain Alumni links with Flinders, with other Flinders graduates in Malaysia, and with other South Australian university alumni. Since returning, and at their behest, I have been working to find some additional resources to assist in the management of their very active Chapter.

On the same journey, I returned to Australia through Canberra, where we held our first Flinders Alumni event in Old Parliament House. With about 100 people in attendance (including the then Minister for Education and Flinders alumnus Dr Brendan Nelson and founding staff members, Strategic Plan is aligned to the University Executive Committee has ensured that the work was this year overseen by Emeritus Professor Ralph Elliott AM), it was an annual major networking event; increased industry input into curriculum development; opportunities to donate; access to the University Library for alumni; more publicity along the lines of “where they are now” to assist in showcasing the achievements of Flinders alumni; mentoring of international students; sponsored events linking schools and community organisations; and films rights of films made by Flinders graduates. All of these suggestions and others are being considered in future program activities for the Association.

The six FACes professional sector sub-groups, which all include Alumni Association executive Committee members, are contributing to the 40th Anniversary by each planning an entertaining symposium to take place on Saturday, November 4, 2006. I would especially like to acknowledge James Mullaney and the Alumni Convocation Medallist, Neil Mules, AO (Ambassador to Mexico and former Ambassador to Iraq) is available on the following pages.

To the current Alumni Executive Committee members who are listed on the preceding pages, my sincere thanks for their unstinting support and enthusiasm. Various members of the Executive Committee serve in other capacities on University Council and its Committees, thereby giving the perspective of graduates to the most senior level of University decision making.

Dr Hank Duyverman serves as the Alumni Association’s representative on the University’s Academic Senate, while I represent the Association on the University’s Resources Committee. Alumni Executive Committee member Dr Kate Barnett, and Head, Alumni and Community Relations Sheryl Chandler, were the Alumni Association’s representatives who participated in the trial Australian Universities’ Quality Audit conducted at Flinders. The final audit will be conducted in August 2006 and the former Convocation Executive Committee, and many other areas of the University, will be required to demonstrate strategic outcomes in community engagement.

During the year Jennifer Richardson and Katana Smith resigned from the Alumni Executive Committee due to interstate commitments, however, we are pleased that they both retain their interest in graduate affairs as members of FACes. At year’s end we were pleased to welcome Neil Mules, AO (Ambassador to Mexico and former Ambassador to Iraq) is available on the following pages.

It is with much pleasure that I extend congratulations to the increasing numbers of graduates who have been awarded recent Australian Honours; particularly those who have served, or are serving on University Council, the former Convocation Executive Committee or Alumni Association and FACes committees: The Hon Diana Laidlaw, Dr Rod Watkins, Dr Phyl McKillup, Dr Margaret King-Boyes and immediate past President of the Alumni Association and Convocation Ian Yates.

On behalf of the Alumni Executive Committee, our thanks go to the entire staff of the Public Affairs and Alumni Office, especially those most closely associated with alumni activities: Sheryl Chandler; Geoff Sauer, Katherine Reache, Brigitta Anderson and Robert Wild.

Finally, I encourage you to look at www.flinders.edu.au/anniversary on a regular basis for more information on the many interesting, varied and nostalgic events at which we hope to meet many Flinders graduates, students, former and current staff and their families during 2006.
The Public Affairs and Alumni Office (PAandAO), on behalf of the Alumni Association, was involved in a wide range of activities during 2005. Some of those events are highlighted throughout the following pages.

40th Anniversary Theme: Treasure the Past - Shape the Future

After much consultation and deliberation by the University’s 40th Anniversary organising committee, (chaired by the Vice-Chancellor and comprising the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (International), Alumni Association and FACes representatives, Jill Hains and James Mulrany, Lecturer in Festival and Event Management Steve Brown, and staff from the Public Affairs and Alumni Office and the newly created Development Office), the above theme was chosen and the overall plan for the celebratory year was decided to cluster around three main time frames. Firstly, the 10th anniversary of the Lincoln Marine Science Centre in Port Lincoln in January, the Flinders University Staff Party in February and the Gala Dinner in the Adelaide Convention Centre on March 25.

Secondly, the Flinders University Week for the general community July 7-16 including Imagining Flinders on July 8 to profile the achievements through “Creative Conversations” with many outstanding Flinders graduates in the creative arts, including Noni Hazlehurst AM who will give the inaugural Wal Cherry Lecture, John Schumann who will give the inaugural Brian Medlin Lecture, the Windmill Theatre Company’s production of Mem Fox’s book Green Sheep, and a sneak preview of Mario Andrectchio’s new film Elephant Tales. Prof Faith Trent AM chairs the Imagining Flinders organising committee comprising staff from the Faculty of Education, Humanities, Law and Theology and the Public Affairs and Alumni Office, including the 40th Anniversary Co-ordinator Aimie Ellis. Prof Brian Matthews, Greg Mackie, Douglas Gautier, Helen Leake, Stefan Grun, Kenny Heysen, Steve Brown, Alison Wotherspoon, Mike Walsh and Lindy Dodd are especially thanked for their various contributions during the year.

The University week will continue with many events, including FACes Leader Dr Leanna Read’s public lecture on July 13, internationally acclaimed primatologist Dr Jane Goodall’s public lecture on July 12, the Don Dunstan Seminar on July 15 and a Science Fair and other exciting activities on campus on July 16.

In mid-September Dr David Suzuki will give a public lecture and, finally, the celebratory year will culminate in events for international graduates October 28 – November 1, the Investigator Lecture on November 2, and the Alumni Return to Flinders on campus events for alumni November 3-5, (with a highlight being the six Flinders Ambassadors in the Community (FACES) symposia on November 4). Various alumni reunions are being planned for the anniversary year - the Flinders Football Club (May 2006) and in November, Biological Sciences postgraduates, several other areas of science, Women’s Studies, School of Education graduates, former residents of University Hall/Townhouses, and Indigenous graduates (from Yunggorendi, First Nations Centre for Higher Education and Research).

Only the second graduate of Flinders invited to give the annual Investigator Lecture, held in the Adelaide Town Hall in early November, the Ambassador gave a riveting insight into the daily dangers and heart wrenching experiences of his time in Iraq and Indonesia. The Lecture was entitled Diplomacy in the 21st century – responding to new challenges. Subsequently, for the first time, the Lecture was made available for viewing on the Alumni website.
Interstate Alumni Activities

In April, the Vice-Chancellors and Alumni staff of the three South Australian Universities accompanied the Premier of South Australia, the Hon Mike Rann and staff from the Department of Economic Development and Trade, to receptions in Melbourne and Sydney for the purpose of encouraging expatriate graduates to return to their home State. Flinders graduate, Nuala Hafner, compered the event in Sydney with great style.

In Melbourne, the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (International), Professor Dean Forbes, hosted a dinner for FACes members immediately following the Premier’s reception. Jason Cotton, Dr Michelle Critchley, Peter Hood, Tam Nguyen, Marilyn Lambert, Katana Smith, Dr Maurice Venning, Canon Roger Wood, and former Vice-Chancellor, Emeritus Professor John Lovering and Kerry Lovering were present.

Grateful thanks are extended to FACes members Margy Burn, Krista Hancy, Associate Professor David Lovell, Ian McHenry, Michelle Mount, Neal O’Callaghan, Associate Professor Paul Smith and Bruno Yvanovich for their support.

International Alumni Activities

In September, Alumni President Stephen Hains and his wife (and fellow Flinders graduate) Jill Hains, met with members of the Alumni Chapter Committee in Malaysia to discuss issues and to gather interest in participating in the international Alumni Return in 2006.

In Indonesia, the annual AusAID Alumni Dinner in mid-September provided the opportunity for graduates to relate their memories of Flinders on a table jointly sponsored by the Alumni Association and the University’s International Office.

In Hong Kong, the Flinders Alumni Chapter remained inactive whilst, in accordance with legal requirements, a new Board was appointed.

In London, the South Australian Agent-General’s Office continued to assist the activities of the combined Chapter of the three Universities.

One of our most esteemed graduates Dr Mamoru Mohri, former astronaut and current Director of the National Museum of Emerging Science and Innovation in Tokyo, Japan, visited Flinders in July.
Medical Alumni Reunions

The year was an especially nostalgic one for graduates of the Bachelor of Medicine/Bachelor of Surgery and the Alumni staff assisted four different groups to organise reunions.

In mid-September, Dr Catherine Murray organised the 10th anniversary of the 1995 BMBS graduates which was held at the Oxford Hotel.

In early October, Dr Carolyn Radford and her colleagues organised the 20th anniversary of the 1985 BMBS graduating class which was held at Auge Ristorante. They were thrilled to have more than half of the graduates attend, including six who came from interstate especially for the occasion.

In mid-October, Dr Rob Pegram organised a weekend reunion at McLarens on the Lake for the 25th anniversary of the founding class of medical students. The Vice-Chancellor Professor Anne Edwards attended the event to congratulate the graduates.

In early December, Dr Neil Jones organised the 20th anniversary reunion for the 1986 graduates and 60 people attended the event at the Lido Restaurant.

Launch of Matthew Flinders’s Private Journal

Due to the generosity of Mr Witgar Hitchcock, the great-great-great nephew of Captain Flinders, the Friends of the State Library of SA were able to publish the first edition of the navigator’s private journal, which was edited by the University’s Special Collection Librarian Dr Gillian Dooley and historian Anthony Brown.

Mr Hitchcock came from the UK for the launch of the publication in October; and several other descendants, including Jayne Salmon from Victoria, were present. Due to Alumni staff networking, the BBC (Midlands) were aware of the event and came to film footage for a program on Captain Flinders to be shown in the UK in 2006. (The Alumni Association held the donation on trust until it was transferred to the Friends of the State Library during the year.)

Ann Flinders Club Reunion

In November, 55 women, former members of the Ann Flinders Club (named after the wife of Captain Flinders) met for a 40th Reunion Lunch. The Club was created in 1965 as a way to welcome and involve the wives and families of the University’s early staff members. Lena Karmel, wife of the first Vice-Chancellor, travelled from Canberra to attend. Isabel Storer, Ionie Brennan and Beverly Berry are particularly acknowledged for this initiative.

Alumni e- Library

The Alumni Association and the University Library negotiated a new initiative for graduates which will become available in 2006. For the cost of $90 a year, members of the Alumni Association can have access to 5,000 full text electronic journals and other benefits.

Encounter Magazine

The annual magazine Encounter, complete with fridge magnets publicising the 40th Anniversary, was sent to more than 41,000 graduates in late November, as well as many former and all current staff. The data base of contactable addresses of graduates remains one of the best in the country, being 81% of the total number of 51,000 graduates (with 4,000 overseas and 8,000 interstate).

Distinguished Alumni Awards

The rules for a new Alumni Award, for significant achievement by graduates, were devised and approved by the University. It was decided to give the forty inaugural awards on March 24, 2006, the evening before the Gala Dinner.

Liaison with Development Office

During the year, a new Development Office, concerned with fundraising through the Flinders University Fund for the Future, was set up and co-located with the PAandAO. Mr Lauran Heufner (Head), Ms Dara Boucher (Project Officer) and Mr Robert Wild (Data Base and Research Officer) were appointed, with the latter’s duties being shared with the Alumni Association.

Marketing the University

During the year, staff member Katherine Reaiche assisted with postgraduate course marketing and Sheryl Chandler and Geoffrey Sauer assisted new staff, the Head of Marketing Communications, Veronica Maughan and Journalist Nicole Leedham, with stories about graduates for promotional purposes.
Due to the formation of the University’s Development Office during 2005, the Alumni Association is no longer actively seeking donors, but continues to liaise with those with whom there is already a relationship. They are listed on the following pages and sincerely thanked for their support throughout the year.

Further, due to decision making processes about Scholarship and Bursary recipients being affected by the new Commonwealth Government Learning Scholarships, the Alumni Association and University Housing no longer hold a joint Scholarships Awards Ceremony at the beginning of the academic year and, hence, this annual report only details the Scholarships and Bursaries which are held in trust by the Alumni Association.

The Scholarship commemorates the memory of the late Ember Venning, whose daughter Dr Elizabeth Kwan, has generously endowed considerable funds to enable $2,500 to be given annually to assist a postgraduate researcher in the field of speech pathology. The second recipient is Christine Brebner, a graduate in Speech Pathology in 1991, and currently Professional Practice Educator in that Department. Concurrently she is completing her PhD researching the acquisition of Singapore Colloquial English and Singapore Standard English for preschool Chinese Singaporean children. Her areas of interest are language impairments in children, specifically children from diverse cultural and linguistic backgrounds, working with children with special educational needs and clinical education for Speech Pathology students.

Australian Red Cross (Park Avenues Branch) Prize in Bachelor of Health Sciences – Paramedic

Thanks to the support of the Park Avenues Branch of the Australian Red Cross, an annual $250 book voucher is given to the top second year student studying the subject Pathophysiology of Body Systems – Cardiovascular System. Special thanks are extended to Mary Sauer from the Red Cross Branch. The current recipient is Lisa Roberts.

Michael Crotty Prize in Primary Health Care

The $250 Prize is in memory of a much respected staff member in Primary Health Care. It is awarded to the graduating student in the Masters of Primary Health Care who has achieved the highest marks throughout the course. The current recipient, Craig Wilkins, has a background in drug and alcohol policy, research and training and has worked as a nurse in clinical and community settings. He currently works as a Senior Policy Officer, Sustainability Strategies, in the Sustainability and Climate Change Division of the Department of the Premier and Cabinet. Particular interests include active transport, wellbeing, community and local food systems, and motivating community behaviour change.

Medical Alumni Association Scholarship Fund

The University’s Alumni Association holds on trust for its affiliate, the presently inactive Flinders Medical Alumni Association, profits from medical alumni reunions. The intention is to build the funds to provide an annual scholarship for medical students.

Matthew Davey Memorial Fund

During the year, Alumni Association Executive Committee member Dr Caroline Phegan, instigated the Fund in memory of her Bachelor of Medicine/Bachelor of Surgery classmate, the late Dr Matthew Davey. With eight others, Matthew was tragically killed in an Australian Army helicopter crash whilst doing humanitarian work in Nias, Indonesia in April 2005. The initial donation is the proceeds from a celebration event organised by the BMBS graduating class of the year 2000.
