International Studies & Languages
Pathways to Flinders

At Flinders we recognise that every prospective student is an individual and that what works for one might not be right for another. That’s why we provide multiple entry pathways to help you get into Uni.

Take the time to explore your options and find the entry path that’s right for you. If you want more information or to check out your options go to: flinders.edu.au/pathways

Entry options

Competitive ATAR entry

The majority of Year 12 applicants enter university via the traditional competitive entry method, where offers are made to eligible applicants with the highest ATARs until all places in the course are filled. The 2011 ATAR cut-offs for each course provide a guide for 2012 entry and are listed in the course entries on the following pages.

Guaranteed entry ATAR

Achieve an ATAR equal to or above the published guaranteed entry ATAR and you will be guaranteed a place at Flinders. All you need to do is ensure you have listed Flinders courses first in your preferences and you will be offered a place in the highest Flinders course preference that you are eligible for in 2012.

More information can be found at: www.flinders.edu.au/guaranteedatar

Bonus points

Bonus points contribute to your ATAR when applying for Flinders University courses. Flinders offers a variety of bonus point access schemes, including: Student Equal Access Scheme (SEAS), Rural and Isolated Student Access Scheme (RISAS), Science and Maths Bonus Points Scheme, and the Languages Other Than English (LOTE) Bonus Points Scheme. Find out more at: www.flinders.edu.au/bonuspoints

How to apply

Flinders offers two admission cycles each year:

- February intake (Semester 1): applications open in August for commencement the following year.
- Mid-year intake (Semester 2): applications open in May for commencement in July that year. Not all courses are offered mid-year.

Applicants must apply through the South Australian Tertiary Admissions Centre (SATAC). For full details on how to apply visit www.satac.edu.au

Admissions/Prospective Students Office

Flinders University
GPO Box 2100, Adelaide SA 5011
Tel: 1300 657 671
Email: admissions@flinders.edu.au

For international student enquiries email international@flinders.edu.au or visit www.flinders.edu.au/international

Note: This diagram should be used as a guide only. For more details on entry requirements and the entry pathways available, contact the Admissions/Prospective Students Office.

ATAR = Australian Tertiary Admission Rank
GPA = Grade point average
IB = International Baccalaureate
SACE = South Australian Certificate of Education
STAT = Special Tertiary Admission Test
You may also be interested in...
Arts
Business (International Business)
Government and Public Management
Justice and Society
Media (Public Affairs)
Bachelor of International Studies

International Studies

This course...

> gives you the opportunity to live and study abroad;
> offers six guaranteed places per year in the United States Congress Internship Program; > analyses key political, social, economic and cultural relationships shaping the world today; > teaches you how the world works and how you can play a role in international affairs.

What does International Studies at Flinders offer?

International studies is more than just ‘world affairs’ or ‘globalisation’. It goes well beyond the news headlines to explore how societies and their different systems of government interact, in ways that define the world in which we live and our daily lives. International Studies provides the knowledge needed to thrive in the rapidly changing world of tomorrow.

The Bachelor of International Studies (BIS) draws on a broad range of recognised expertise from a range of scholarly disciplines including security; Asian, American and development studies respectively; international relations; history; and languages.

This specialist program is designed to provide you with skills, knowledge and concepts to prepare you for a career in organisations with an international or intercultural focus. You will gain an understanding of key political, social, economic, strategic and cultural relationships within the global community and patterns of interaction such as foreign policy and diplomacy. Australia’s place and role within Asia and the world is studied, and you will be given an insight into societies, cultures and alternative systems of governance that are of particular significance to Australia. You will study the international movement of people—as immigrants, refugees, workers, students, tourists and investors—and the impact that globalisation has on contemporary life. Languages other than English and cross-disciplinary approaches to international studies also form part of the program.

Flinders has formal links with many world-class universities, enabling you to undertake exchange programs or internships abroad, including in Washington DC and Australia’s closest neighbour, Indonesia. Over 60 students have gone to work in the US Congress in the last decade, more than any university in the Asia Pacific and perhaps any university outside of the US. Six guaranteed places are available per year in the United States Congress.

Conversely, you may wish to gain initial experience closer to home, with opportunities for industry experience within the South Australia Parliamentary and Public Sector Internship. Ten guaranteed places are available per year in the South Australian Parliament.

Other key affiliated institutions include:

> Nankai University – China
> Georgetown University – USA
> Hiroshima National University – Japan
> Uppsala University – Sweden
> York University – Canada
> Parahyangan Catholic University – Indonesia
> Muhammadiyah University of Yogyakarta – Indonesia
> Australian and New Zealand School of Government
> Department of Defence
> Defence Science and Technology Organisation
> Cabinet Office, Department of the Premier and Cabinet
> Department of Families and Communities
> Amnesty International.
Study program

The Bachelor of International Studies at Flinders offers a distinctive study program that sets it apart from competing BIS degrees in South Australia. Flinders is the only university in the state to offer an American Studies major and, from 2012, a new Security Studies major. Flinders University’s Indonesian major is also the only one offered in South Australia and is open to cross-institutional enrolments from the other universities.

Students graduate from the Flinders Bachelor of International Studies with two clear majors, not one. The two-major structure of our Bachelor of International Studies provides you with the opportunity to tailor your learning experience to your own intellectual and career interests. Each major has distinct strengths that combine well together. The following International Studies majors are available for study at Flinders:

American Studies lets students gain a much better understanding of the world’s only superpower and Australia’s most important global partner. Through the US Congress Internship it offers students a unique work-integrated learning experience in the centre of global power.

Asian Studies is structured to give students a deeper interdisciplinary understanding of the cultures and politics of the world’s largest, most diverse and most dynamic region. It brings Asia much closer to students.

Development Studies tackles head-on the biggest divide in the world today: the gap between economically advanced economies and states and those that are not. It opens up Africa, Latin America and Asia to the students in a unique way, while its practical focus provides them with key professional skills.

History allows students to gain a much better understanding of how Australia and the world in general has arrived where it is today politically, culturally and environmentally. History is one of the most popular Social Science majors at Flinders.

International Relations is a strength of Flinders and provides a broader focus on how states, corporations and peoples interact across borders and at the global level. There is a particular concentration on Human Rights, the international political economy, and Australia’s evolving place in the world.

Languages allows you to study Indonesian (the main language of Australia’s most important neighbour), French, Spanish, Italian or Modern Greek on campus. Knowledge of a language provides a more thorough understanding of its associated culture, and studying languages deepens any student’s appreciation of the diversity of International Studies.

Politics enables you to combine International Studies with a better understanding of Australia’s own political system and place in the world. It will provide you with an appreciation of how International Studies interacts with global political developments such as feminism and environmental politics.

Security Studies covers the causes and consequences of traditional military conflict and how to avoid this. This new major also looks at the growing number of new security challenges facing states and peoples, from illegal migration to terrorism to environmental disasters.

“The best aspect of the Bachelor of International Studies was gaining a broad-based knowledge of interconnected global issues.”

Flinders International Studies graduate comment obtained from the Australian Graduate Survey.
International Studies

Career opportunities

International studies is a growth area, with high demand for graduates who can read, analyse, plan and pre-empt movements within the international political arena. In providing such capabilities, the Bachelor of International Studies gives graduates a distinct advantage in seeking job opportunities in international government and non-government organisations, diplomacy, foreign affairs and foreign aid; and journalism, defence, trade and intelligence organisations.

Potential employment is available in a diverse range of government settings, such as defence, attorneys-general, immigration, AusAID, Prime Minister and Cabinet, foreign affairs and trade, customs, and departments of economic development. Other potential employers include: internationally focussed corporations working in new or challenging markets, and global and regional non-government organisations such as Amnesty International and the media. There is also a growing number of self-employed international consultants.

Studying overseas

Flinders University has a series of international exchange links that give you the chance to study part of your degree overseas. Studying in another country allows you to gain an international perspective which may be useful in your career and the exchange experience looks great on your résumé. You can also access scholarships from the University to support your study and living costs.

For more information on all exchange opportunities and scholarships at Flinders go to: www.flinders.edu.au/flinders-abroad

Further study

Bachelor of International Studies (Honours).
Graduate Certificate, Graduate Diploma and Masters programs in International Relations and Development Studies.
Bachelor of International Tourism

International Tourism

This course...

- offers three areas of specialisation: Cultural Tourism, Festival and Event Design and Management, and Nature Based Tourism;
- has a wide perspective with excellent global employment opportunities;
- is taught by people who work in the industry, and is shaped by industry feedback and requirements;
- offers small class sizes, flexibility and a variety of topics that provide a broad skills and knowledge base.

What does International Tourism at Flinders offer?

The Bachelor of International Tourism is an industry focused award, training graduates for diverse roles across a wide ranging and constantly evolving industry. As a service industry, tourism is rapidly expanding, a reflection of the increasing mobility of the world’s population and a continuing need for refinement and reinvention.

Whether graduates work with festivals and events, tour companies, museums, art galleries or visitor information centres, an understanding and appreciation of the arts, culture and history is needed. In addition, graduates should have a firm grasp of a region’s specific social, cultural and political systems and distinctive characteristics. Why? Because tourism professionals need to anticipate and exceed all expectations, in turn making each experience client-focused and unique.

International tourism examines this industry from a global perspective, integrating economic, environmental and socio-cultural considerations, underpinned by overarching principles of industry sustainability.

The Bachelor of International Tourism develops the analytical and practical skills needed by students in tourism worldwide, to respond to the growing market demand for high quality, sustainable tourism development and management. International tourism examines the issues, trends and approaches in the global tourism industry and has as its objective the promotion of, and critical and theoretical understanding of, tourism as a global phenomenon. The application of that knowledge to international, national, regional and local circumstances is developed by examining diverse industry practices across a variety of contexts.

All of our teaching staff have relevant academic standing and contemporary industry experience – a winning combination that creates an exemplary learning environment.

Industry support for Flinders tourism degrees is also very strong, with industry feedback assisting in the development of a practical and progressive program curriculum and elective options.

We have expanded our teaching directly to the industry by offering a suite of courses in festival and event design, marketing, management and site interpretation as professional development workshops. This has firmly established Flinders as one of the leading providers of tourism education programs in Australia.

“The course coordinators in the Tourism degree spent time getting to know each student and were always available to have a chat. They were very passionate about what they taught.”

Flinders International Tourism graduate comment obtained from the Australian Graduate Survey.

Course length: Bachelor of International Tourism – 3 years full-time or equivalent part-time, 4 years with Honours.

Combined International Tourism/Languages – 4 years full-time or equivalent part-time.

Prerequisites: None. No assumed knowledge.

2011 ATAR: Bachelor of International Tourism – 75.95. Combined International Tourism/Languages – 83.50.

Bonus points: SEAS, RISAS.
Study program

You can choose from the following areas of specialisation:

> Cultural Tourism
> Festival and Event Design and Management
> Nature Based Tourism

Students complete a common core of tourism and business subjects. You will study a range of core topics including International Tourism Management; Event Design and Practice; Interpretive Tour Guiding; Accounting for Managers; Marketing Principles; Place, Culture and Tourism; Introduction to Tourism Research; Contemporary Issues in Tourism; and Tourism Business Planning.

Students will also undertake an industry placement and a tourism research project.

Practical experience

The degree has strong links with industry, as reflected in the course content, whereby students undertake a number of core topics which are industry focused, including an industry placement and industry linked research. Field work and site visits are an integral part of the course at each year level. Industry placement – in Australia or overseas – is a compulsory component of the degree and often one of the most enjoyable. It also gives you the opportunity to develop some important contacts in the industry.

Placement duties can vary from designing pamphlets and web pages to developing new tours, visitor satisfaction surveys, risk management and operation plans, new marketing strategies or the design and management of events.

Studying overseas

Flinders University has a series of international exchange links that give you the chance to study part of your degree overseas. Studying in another country allows you to gain an international perspective which may be useful in your career and the exchange experience looks great on your résumé. You can also access scholarships from the University to support your study and living costs.

For more information on all exchange opportunities and scholarships at Flinders go to: www.flinders.edu.au/flinders-abroad

Combined degrees

The combined Bachelor of International Tourism/Bachelor of Languages provides you with the opportunity to combine study of the theoretical and practical elements of the tourism industry with the acquisition of language and cultural skills. The combined degree will allow you to either acquire skills in a second area of language other than English (LOTE), or study a significant number of culture topics.

Bachelor of International Tourism/Bachelor of Languages
4 years | SATAC Code: 214842

Career opportunities

The Bachelor of International Tourism is an industry focussed degree that trains graduates for employment in a wide range of positions in what is a very diverse industry in both Australia and overseas. This course produces graduates who are culturally aware and active, and equipped to begin work in areas such as tour planning and policy development or in a variety of tourism ventures. They gain employment with local, state and federal government tourism organisations, tourism operators, festival and event organisations, museums, art galleries, and visitor information centres.

Potential occupations include: events and tourism coordinator, event manager, tourism officer, project officer, regional events coordinator, education and interpretation officer, arts administrator.

Potential employers include: Arts SA, South Australian Tourism Commission, Adelaide Festival of the Arts, Events South Australia, Department for Environment and Natural Resources, National Trust of Australia, Tourism Australia.

Further study

Graduate Certificate, Graduate Diploma and Masters degrees in Tourism, specialising in Festival and Event Design and Management or Tourism are available. Graduates can also apply for the Graduate Certificate, Graduate Diploma and Masters degrees in Screen and Media Production.
These courses...

> include the only Bachelor of Languages offered in South Australia;
> give you the opportunity to hone your language skills by studying abroad; > will give you language skills which can open up language-specific careers such as translating, interpreting and teaching.

Course length: Bachelor of Languages – 3 years full-time or equivalent part-time, 4 years with Honours.
Bachelor of International Tourism/ Bachelor of Languages – 4 years full-time or equivalent part-time.
Prerequisites: None. No assumed knowledge.
SATAC Code: Bachelor of Languages – 214921. Combined International Tourism/Languages – 214842.
2011 ATAR: Bachelor of Languages – 79.55. Combined International Tourism/Languages – 83.50.
Guaranteed entry ATAR: Bachelor of Languages – 70.00. Combined International Tourism/Languages – 80.00.
Bonus points: LOTE, SEAS, RISAS.

What does Languages at Flinders offer?

Being able to communicate proficiently in another language is a valuable skill. Today more and more employers are looking for people who can combine that skill with a greater awareness of cultural diversity and linguistic practice.

Although English is still the most important language in trade and international affairs, 94% of people don’t speak English as their first language and 75% don’t speak it at all. Businesses and government departments regularly employ people who combine fluency in a language with other skills and knowledge. It is also important to understand the culture of the language you are using. Understanding other cultures helps you communicate better. It also allows you to appreciate the differences between cultures as well as the things that we have in common. Those who have this extra knowledge are paid well for it.

Whether you have some experience or have never done any language studies before, studying languages at Flinders is the perfect way to become a skilled user of languages other than English.

The following target languages can be studied at Flinders:

> French
> Indonesian
> Italian
> Modern Greek
> Spanish.

Our cross-institutional agreement with other South Australian universities enables you to take minor studies in Chinese, German and Japanese.

Many teachers in the Department of Language Studies are native speakers of Flinders University’s target languages and are able to share their unique understanding and insights with you. You will learn through classroom interaction in a relaxed atmosphere, and by access to our audiovisual material and modern computer language laboratories.

“I definitely recommend studying a language at Flinders. You won’t regret it!”

Comment from Flinders Languages student.
Languages offered at Flinders

French
French is the official language of 33 countries spread over five continents. As well as being a major commercial and scientific language in the European Union, French is a language of diplomacy and an official working language of major international organisations (e.g., the United Nations, the World Trade Organisation, Amnesty International, the Olympic movement, the International Red Cross). It is the second most widespread and well-distributed language of the media, and is an asset in such fields as cultural exchanges, scientific collaboration and the promotion of trade ties between France and Australia.

We offer a study tour in New Caledonia to encourage students to practise the language in situ. Exchanges with French-speaking universities can also be arranged, for which financial support from the French Embassy may be available.

To increase the benefit of your language studies, you can also choose to study for one or two semesters in a number of world-class universities at Université d’Avignon, Université of Paris II- Assas, specialising in Economics and Law, as well as at Canada -York University in Toronto.

It is also possible for students of French to undertake a two-to-three week linguistic and cultural immersion at the CREIPAC in New Caledonia over the November/December period, or a three-week immersion course in France in January. These short courses are organised directly through the French Section of the Department of Language Studies, and can be assessed as part of your French Cultural Studies. The French Government, through the French Embassy in Canberra, offers a number of grants to support students who wish to study in a French-speaking country.

Indonesian
Bahasa Indonesia is closely related to Malay and is a language of communication throughout our region, including Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore and Brunei.

Studying Indonesian language is vital to understanding this region and an invaluable asset for students contemplating careers in government service, private business or teaching in Australia. Our graduates are working in diverse fields including foreign affairs, diplomacy, international aid agencies, journalism, healthcare, security, business and education.

Classes are taught by Indonesian and Australian teachers and we have arrangements with a number of Indonesian universities to provide in-country study options that can be credited to a Flinders degree.

Italian
Italy has been a world leader in literature, architecture, painting, sculpture and music for the past 800 years. Today it is one of the seven wealthiest nations in the world, an essential tourist destination and a major trading partner with Australia.

You can also practise and use Italian in your own community. Italian is the second most widely spoken language in Australia, with more than half a million people using it every day.

Knowledge of Italian can be of benefit in fields such as tourism, hospitality, music, fashion, design, architecture, science, education, technology, government services, international law, commerce and sport. Flinders has exchange agreements with universities in Italy.

Modern Greek
Greece is the home of the Olympic Games and the origin of many active migrant communities around the world, including Australia. As a member of the European Union, Greece is an excellent place of potential employment and a gateway to Europe.

Australia has a large number of Greek communities and Modern Greek is the third most spoken language. Many Greek Australians use Modern Greek for their day-to-day personal and professional life.

Hellenism is the western world’s cultural heritage: it shares the literary, philosophical, aesthetic and scientific masterpieces of a remarkable civilisation with an intellectual continuity of 3000 years. The study of Modern Greek language will provide you with the background knowledge to understand your own language and society in general.
2. Studying a language as a major

If your choice is a Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Business, or Bachelor of International Studies, you can select a language as one of your major sequences. The flexible Bachelor of Arts allows for up to two majors, so there is plenty of scope to build in the areas that interest you.

3. Diploma in Language

If you are undertaking any other degree at Flinders – from Science or Psychology to Law or Business – you can complete a Diploma in Language alongside your Bachelor degree (including the Bachelor of Languages). All five languages are available and by adding one extra year to your normal study program for your Bachelor degree, you will graduate with two qualifications. You apply for entry into the Diploma in Language when you enrol in your Bachelor degree.

Whether you have studied a language before or not, you will find learning a language at Flinders different to anything you have experienced: you will work in small groups with like-minded people, enjoy more independence, and get teaching that is geared to your needs. Learning a language at Flinders will add variety to your studies.

Languages continued

Spanish

Spanish is now the second "world language". Spoken by 450 million people (the most of any European language), it is the official language of 21 countries and is widely spoken in 22 others. It is the seventh most spoken language in Australia, is second only to English in the US, and is the third most frequently used language online. Spanish is also an official language of the United Nations, the European Union, the World Trade Organisation and 70 other international organisations. In addition, it is a major business language which has a strong profile in the Asia Pacific region, Europe and North and South America. Spanish is also an important language of culture. It is the language of the ten Hispanic authors who have won the Nobel Prize for Literature; of film directors and actors such as Almodovar, Javier Bardem and Salma Hayek; and of the painters Pablo Picasso, Diego Rivera and Frida Kahlo. It is also the language of salsa, tapas, tango and flamenco.

Flinders has exchange agreements with universities in Spain, Argentina, Chile and Mexico so students can spend one or two semesters studying overseas and receive credit towards their degree. Other study abroad options are also available.

Study program

Flinders University offers three options to make learning one of our five languages part of your study program.

1. Bachelor of Languages

If studying languages is your passion, the Bachelor of Languages may be your degree of choice. It enables you to study your chosen target language in more depth than at any other university in South Australia while also studying a second target language. It also includes a range of cultural and linguistics topics that greatly enrich your experience and knowledge of your chosen languages.

Depending on your prior experience, you will be given the choice of following either a beginners or advanced stream. The advanced stream is available if you enter with a Year 12 (or equivalent) level of proficiency in your chosen language(s). You will be expected to focus your studies on one of the offered target languages: French, Indonesian, Italian, Modern Greek or Spanish.

You will also have the opportunity to either:
- undertake an additional major or minor in one of these languages, or a minor in Chinese, German or Japanese; or
- undertake a major or minor in Applied Linguistics, English or Creative Writing, or a minor in Teaching English as a Second Language.

In First Year you will take classes in your chosen languages as well as learning how language works and acquiring the basic tools to reinforce your language learning. You will also study two electives from the Bachelor of Arts program.

In Second and Third Years you will study a number of cognate topics in addition to your chosen languages to provide you with greater cultural awareness and linguistic knowledge. Cognate topics may include cultural studies, linguistics, language education and migration studies.

In Third Year you will also be given the opportunity either to study abroad or undertake relevant professional work experience locally, and have it credited towards your Bachelor of Languages degree.

2. Studying a language as a major

SATAC Code: Language major sequences are available in the Bachelor of Arts – 214031, Bachelor of Business – 214761, and Bachelor of International Studies – 214221.

Course length: All courses are 3 years full-time or equivalent part-time.

If your choice is a Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Business, or Bachelor of International Studies, you can select a language as one of your major sequences. The flexible Bachelor of Arts allows for up to two majors, so there is plenty of scope to build in the areas that interest you.

3. Diploma in Language

The Diploma in Language is normally 3 years part-time in conjunction with a Bachelor degree, adding one extra year to your overall program.

If you are undertaking any other degree at Flinders – from Science or Psychology to Law or Business – you can complete a Diploma in Language alongside your Bachelor degree (including the Bachelor of Languages). All five languages are available and by adding one extra year to your normal study program for your Bachelor degree, you will graduate with two qualifications. You apply for entry into the Diploma in Language when you enrol in your Bachelor degree.
Advanced Placement Scheme

The Advanced Placement Scheme enables students enrolled in an undergraduate degree at Flinders University to apply to enter language studies directly at the second-year level. The Scheme is available to students who have obtained an ATAR-adjusted score of 19 or 20 out of 20 in French, Italian, Modern Greek or Spanish, provided that they have the necessary documentation.

Studying overseas

Flinders University has a series of international exchange links that give you the chance to study part of your degree overseas. Studying in another country allows you to gain an international perspective which may be useful in your career and the exchange experience looks great on your résumé. You can also access scholarships from the University to support your study and living costs.

For more information on all exchange opportunities and scholarships at Flinders go to: www.flinders.edu.au/flinders-abroad

Combined degrees

You can take the Bachelor of Languages in a combined degree program with the Bachelor of International Tourism:

Bachelor of International Tourism/ Bachelor of Languages

4 years | SATAC Code: 214842

The Bachelor of Languages can also be undertaken at the same time as any other course offered by Flinders that allows concurrent enrolment. Students will be able to commence their second course mid-year (subject to availability).

Students who wish to study a third target language will also be able to enrol in the Diploma of Language concurrently with the Bachelor of Languages. The Diploma in Language can be studied in conjunction with any undergraduate degree. The Diploma in Language is designed to provide you with competence in a chosen language that adds greater portability to your degree. You will complete a total of one extra year of study and graduate with both your chosen degree and the Diploma in Language.

Career opportunities

Language skills open up language-specific careers, such as translating, interpreting and teaching. They also open the door to a wider range of careers that benefit from knowledge of a language and its culture, eg diplomacy, government, journalism, trade, tourism and hospitality.

Further study

Bachelor of Arts (Honours), Graduate Certificate in Language, Graduate Diploma in Language, Graduate Certificate in Language Teaching, Graduate Diploma in Language Teaching, Master of Language Studies.
You may also be interested in...

Arts
3 years full-time or equivalent part-time. 4 years with Honours.
Prerequisites: None. No assumed knowledge.
SATAC Code: 214031
The Bachelor of Arts (BA) enables you to explore a single field of study in depth or study several different fields through a wide range of majors and minors. The BA produces flexible, literate, independent and well-informed graduates, equipped with transferable, highly valued skills.
The following areas of study may be relevant to students interested in International Studies and Languages and can be taken in the BA as a major or minor:
> American Studies
> Applied Linguistics
> Asian Studies
> Australian Studies
> Business Studies
> Development Studies
> English
> Geography
> History
> International Relations
> Languages
> Legal Studies
> Political Studies
> Public Policy
> Sociology
> Women's Studies.
More information about this course can be found in the Flinders Arts & Humanities undergraduate programs brochure.

International Business
3 years full-time or equivalent part-time. 4 years with Honours.
Prerequisites: None. No assumed knowledge.
SATAC Code: 224411 | 224461 (Advanced Leadership)
The Bachelor of Business (International Business) builds upon the business disciplines of marketing, finance, economics, human resource management and global sustainability to provide you with advanced skills and knowledge specific to conducting international trade in both small-medium and large multinational organisations.
The Bachelor of Business (Advanced Leadership and International Business) is a program for high achieving students that provides leadership skills and work-relevant experience in addition to studies in international business.
More information about this course can be found in the Flinders Business & Commerce undergraduate programs brochure.

Justice and Society
3 years full-time or equivalent part-time. 4 years with Honours.
Prerequisites: None. No assumed knowledge.
SATAC Code: 214241
The Bachelor of Justice and Society gives you the skills to deal with matters of public policy by recognising and providing solutions to ethical and legal issues. You will learn skills applicable across occupations including the ability to reason and argue clearly, understand complex positions and their implications, and understand and constructively criticise contemporary life. Industry placement within public, private and community sector organisations provides the opportunity to put your studies into context.
More information about this course can be found in the Flinders Law & Justice or Society, Politics & Government undergraduate programs brochures.

Media (Public Affairs)
3 years full-time or equivalent part-time. 4 years with Honours.
Prerequisites: None. No assumed knowledge.
SATAC CODE: 214861
The Bachelor of Media (Public Affairs) provides you with the opportunity to combine an intensive study of Media (especially Digital Media) with the study of Public Affairs, focussing on the study and production of media. You will be engaged in media production of increasing complexity from the first year of the degree leading to an industry project in the third year. Students will develop skills in the handling of programs for graphic design digital publishing and multimedia production.
A Bachelor of Media (Creative Arts) is also available.
More information about this course can be found in the Flinders Arts & Humanities or Creative Arts & Media undergraduate programs brochures.

More information on these and our other courses can also be found at: www.flinders.edu.au/courses
Enhance your degree

Diploma in Language

Would you like to enhance your studies and expand your career options by learning a language?

Flinders offers you the opportunity to major in a language in conjunction with any undergraduate course. The Diploma in Language is designed to provide you with competence in a chosen language that adds greater portability to your qualifications. You will add one extra year to your total study duration and graduate with both your chosen degree and the Diploma in Language.

The Diploma in Language is only available in combination with another undergraduate course at Flinders. You can apply for the Diploma when you enrol in your undergraduate course.

Didn’t find the course you were looking for?

Why not check out one of our following brochures?
Why make Flinders your choice?

Before you get here

Helping you realise your goals and ambitions is important to us at Flinders University.
It is why we have so many flexible entry pathways.
And it is also why we have an extensive network of services to support you all the way from your initial enquiry and enrolment right through to your graduation.

Flinders understands that everybody's life path is different.
If you are completing Year 12 and thinking about uni, Flinders improves your chance of getting into the course of your choice by offering bonus points for many of its courses.
If you are not a school leaver, TAFE/VET qualifications, the Special Tertiary Admissions Test, foundation studies programs and prior tertiary studies are other ways you can get to Flinders.

While you’re here

A well-rounded university education should not be the end of your learning but a launching pad for the next phase of your life.
What you learn should be relevant, it should increase your understanding of the world around you, and it should help you realise your full potential.
Flinders is fully committed to constantly improving the quality of its teaching and learning at Flinders is connected to our dynamic research environment, with strong links to industry and the broader community.
Among our staff there are a number of national and international award winners for teaching and research, and Flinders has a solid record of achievement in the Australian Awards for University Teaching.
Flinders also has state-of-the-art facilities on a superb campus – it is a perfect setting in which to study, to grow, to relax and to meet friends.

Your next step

Flinders has a variety of resources and services to help you kick-start your career.
Practical placements which give you job-ready skills are an integral part of many Flinders courses.
You will have access to valuable career advice from industry leaders, professionals and graduates.
Or you may like to study one of our postgraduate courses.
Whatever your next step, when you graduate from Flinders you will be part of an international network of alumni who have built careers that enrich their communities across Australia and throughout the world.

www.flinders.edu.au