With a solid academic foundation and workplace ready students, Flinders placements make good sense.

Flinders University is committed to providing a student-centred, innovative, supportive and high quality learning experience.

For students, placements develop work-ready skills. For employers, taking part in a student placement offers benefits that go well beyond providing a foundation for tomorrow’s professionals.

Student placements can assist your heavily committed teams; allow you to assess potential employees; contribute to your community engagement goals; and foster long term research collaboration with the University.

The Mental Health Sciences program is dedicated to providing education targeted to produce clinically skilled graduates. This is achieved through offering a balance of academic foundations and outstanding clinical placements.

Our post-graduate students are well prepared for placements by their second semester, having undertaken a full semester of preparation in the theoretical and clinical aspects of clinical practice and CBT skills.

How do we start?
- Let us know your interest
- Scope your capacity to host students
- Work with us to develop a partnership agreement

What then?
- We provide you with Clinical supervisor training
- Students apply directly to you
- You choose your preferred candidate

What support does Flinders offer?
- Each student is directly mentored by an academic
- We provide you with Clinical supervision (if required)
- Our placement coordinator is available to you for any questions or issues that may arise
What can a placement student do?

• Assess, treat, evaluate:
  • Anxiety disorders
  • Psychosis
  • Depression
  • Problem gambling
• Undertake mental health research

What are the benefits to you?

• Supporting professional practitioners
• Cutting edge academic knowledge
• New talent
• Cost effectiveness
• Additional workforce capacity
• Potential to employ
• Industry skills development

Further Information

Mental Health Sciences Programs
School of Medicine
P: (08) 8204 3930
E: mental.health@health.sa.gov.au
W: flinders.edu.au/wil