No Fooling Around

WARNING: Horseplay on the job leads to inattention, carelessness, unsafe practices and recklessness. It can cause anger and hurt feelings.

Why fooling around is a mistake:

- It takes your mind off your work. People may relax safety standards in the interest of “fun.”

- Your personal safety can be endangered by a practical joke.

- Inappropriate jokes or actions can hurt someone’s feelings or make them angry.

- People become nervous and inattentive if they fear being the next victim.

- Equipment and tools are often used improperly or recklessly.

Laughter is good for everyone, but fooling around on the job is no laughing matter.
