If you want to understand global markets, there’s only so much you can get from textbooks. You need to be out there, on the trading floor, feeling the noise and excitement, making high-stakes decisions in real time.

Welcome to the Business Trading Room. It’s a simulated financial trading centre for students enrolled in Flinders Business degrees.

How does it work?
The Flinders Business Trading Room is a cutting-edge market simulation program environment. Students can access time-series data on security prices and exchange rates, execute trades in real time and plug into financial modelling that mimics the global derivatives market.

The Trading Room is powered by the same tech used by institutional dealing rooms, fund managers and government research departments. It even has mobile and algorithmic trading capabilities. Think of it like Wall Street for beginners.

Who can use the Trading Room?
The Business Trading Room is built into the curriculum for several Flinders Business degrees, including the Bachelor of Finance, Bachelor of Finance and Business Economics, and Bachelor of Business.

"I’ve found all my academics to be very helpful throughout my study. Many of them have a high degree of expertise and experience, which provide very relevant insight to the legal and business fields. Many of my academics are still engaged in the industry, from consultancy to still practising as lawyers. All of my academics have been very easy to communicate with and have always been willing to help.”

Though a small market, the sustainably-minded country presents major opportunities for a producer like South Australia’s Gemtree Wines. Based in McLaren Flat, the viticulture, wine and tourism business is proud of its biodynamic and organic farming practices. In fact, Gemtree Wines’ sustainability philosophies are already being celebrated by the Systembolaget, who have requested that the business explore alternative packaging options in line with Sweden’s consumer preferences, and to minimise environmental impacts.

As part of Flinders University’s Industry Project program, which pairs a team of Flinders University students with a real company, students researched whether this opportunity was worth pursuing – and, if so, what the products would be, and how they would be packaged. The findings are intended to inform a potential, formal proposal that Gemtree Wines could put forward to the Systembolaget.

One of the students assigned to the project was Penelope Bryant, a Business student who recently returned to studies after deciding she needed a change of direction. “I studied at Flinders because I wasn’t happy working in the job I was in, and I really wanted to change up my life a bit,” she says.

“Having young kids, I wanted to show them that you can do anything.”

Bryant has enjoyed working with the client, researching the Swedish market and putting everything she’s learned at university into practice. With aspirations to be a marketing consultant some day, she credits the course with pushing her to step outside of her comfort zone – like speaking in public.

“Stepping outside of campus and into a real-world project has brought meaning to the business theory Bryant has come to know so well. While she’s enjoying her time at university for the moment, she feels content in the knowledge that she’s on the right path to achieving her long-term goals.

“I feel like I’m being a bit fearless right now,” she says. “This project pushes you out of your comfort zone so much, and it’s great to kind of be pushed — maybe kicking and screaming a little bit — but it’s been really wonderful to learn that I can do anything that I put my mind to.”

Systembolaget – a chain of liquor stores owned by the government – is the monopoly purchaser of alcohol for the country. And right now, no organic, sustainably-packaged Australian wines are being sold in it.

“I originally chose Flinders as they have one of the best facilities for future teachers and fantastic student engagement. Studying at Flinders has been a wonderful experience that has given me the opportunity to discover what I truly want into the future while also providing me with support in every way imaginable. Flinders and Yungkurrrinh have given me the opportunity to meet others with similar ambitions and goals as myself and find the benefit of an education in places I would never have thought to look. As a proud Indigenous woman, I want to use my degree to work in First Nation communities to help our young people make it through their high schooling experience and onto their own future aspirations.”

“I always knew I wanted to study overseas at some stage during my degree. A semester exchange gave me the chance to complete topics that weren’t available in my home university and experience life in a city that is very different to my own. Having completed a semester overseas, I now have an edge over the countless other students that are completing the same degree as me and have formed memories that will always stay with me.”
Annelise Smith
Bachelor of Business (Advanced Leadership)

“The Wyndham Richardson Scholarship Fund has been invaluable to reduce the financial pressure during studies, especially now that I am in the later years of my degree.”

Your course being Commonwealth supported means that your course fees are shared between the Australian government and you – with your portion being the student contribution amount.

HECS-HELP loan
You won’t have to pay your fees up-front if you’re an Australian citizen or holder of a permanent humanitarian visa. You can get a HECS-HELP loan for your student contribution portion of your uni fees. Find out more about costs to plan for while you’re at uni at flinders.edu.au/fees

Glossary

Selection rank
The ranking that tertiary admission centres and most universities actually use to assess admission to a course. A person’s course selection rank can include their ATAR, any adjustments they are eligible for, such as equity or subject adjustments, other contributions calculated on the basis of work experience or previous non-secondary study, portfolio assessments, results of the Special Tertiary Admissions Test, other supplementary tests, etc.

There are many terms used within a university that may be unfamiliar or confusing. Below are a few terms that may need explanation.

Admission pathway
Any one of the options available to a prospective higher education student that will enable them to meet the entry requirements of their chosen courses.

ATAR
The Australian Tertiary Admission Rank (ATAR) is a ranking from 30 (lowest) to 99.95 (highest) agreed by COAG as a nationally equivalent measure of a person’s relative academic ranking within their complete age cohort in the year they graduated from senior secondary school.

Adjustment factors
Often referred to as ‘bonus points’, these are additional points that may be used in combination with an applicant’s university aggregate to derive a person’s course selection rank.

Defer
Delaying the start of a course of study by one year (commencing students only). If you have already enrolled, then you need to withdraw from topics before you can defer.

Not all courses are deferrable, please visit flinders.edu.au/defer for details.

Guaranteed entry selection rank
Achieve a selection rank equal to or above the published guaranteed entry selection rank and you’ll be guaranteed a place at Flinders.

Major
A sequence of topics required to be taken as defined in your course rule, normally across all years of a course.

Minor
A sequence of topics required to be taken as defined in your course rule, generally as part of a major.

Offer round/s
Refers to the series of dates on which offers of higher education places are issued to applicants throughout the year, whether through a tertiary admission centre or directly by a higher education provider.

Listing your SATAC preferences
You may enter up to six course preferences that you would like to study. You should list these in order in which you’d like to study them, with the one you would like most listed first. If you cannot be offered a place in your first preference, you will then be considered for your second preference and so on. It is also important to consider a backup plan. Ensure you include our recommended pathway courses in your preferences.
